

Bespoke Training

Classification, Labelling and Packaging – a business based introduction to the new Regulations

CIA offices, London, or a location to suit you

Who should attend?

Anyone responsible for classification and labeling as well as those accountable for wider product stewardship issues should attend.

You'll get the most out of the course if you have some knowledge of the current classification and labelling system. Don't worry if you don't - get in touch with us and we'll help you get up to speed.

Why attend?

On 20 January 2009 the new EU Regulation on Classification, Labelling and Packaging of substances and mixtures (CLP) came into force – do you know what this means for your business?

This training course will help you find out.

Our experts are a talented bunch – not content with just knowing all there is to know about REACH, they have in-depth knowledge of the CLP regulation too.

Tackling the business and technical implications of the United Nations' Globally Harmonised System (GHS) and the EU's Regulation on CLP will be high on the list of priorities for most people already dealing with REACH.

With an initial deadline for substance classification of 1 December 2010 and 1 June 2015 for mixtures, the challenges for your business may be even more pressing than your REACH obligations.

Responding to our subscribers' requests for help we are offering this two-day training course designed to help you understand the impact of this new regulation on your business and what you have to do to comply. Day 1 gives you background on the CLP regulation and GHS and looks at the business implications and how to plan for implementation. On day 2 you will undertake practical exercises on case study examples, learning the basic skills required for classification and labeling under the new regime.
